C.Q: The site used to load is not secure I am at the point now where I can't even edit posts as I am repeatedly getting the following error: The site used to load is not secure Everything I have done, including clearing browser caches, is still to no avail. I have tried enabling and disabling cookies, clearing my browser history, and accessing the site using incognito mode. The only error message I find anywhere on the internet seems to deal with someone who logged in but was not able to access their account, not with someone who cannot access the site at all. RDF is written in Protégé4 format using Protegè3. I generated XML file of that RDF using $ rdflib --list --format xml /usr/share/sparql/library/sparql-sparql11-1.7.1.rdf This XML file is given to test console as follows $ python rdf_test.py /usr/share/sparql/library/sparql-sparql11-1.7.1.rdf This also gives the error " Could not find RDF parser for file". A: You have created an input file. It is not the same as running a program. Protege will usually allow you to run and edit an input file, but as far as I know there is no way to run an input file from a console directly. RDF files are not really like this. They contain all the data necessary for a RDF file. You don't have to start the program as in the first case. You can convert a RDF file to an XML by running $ rdflib --file /path/to/input.
